NOTICE

November 9th, 2016

Due to the presence of coliform bacteria in the water distribution system, the Village of Roscommon will be initiating chlorination of its water system indefinitely. Total coliform bacteria are generally not harmful themselves. Coliforms are bacteria, which are naturally present in the environment and are used as an indicator that other, potentially-harmful, bacteria may be present. Coliforms were found in more samples than allowed and this was a warning of potential problems.

The Village will be holding a community meeting on Tuesday, November 29th at 5:30 p.m. at the CRAF Center. Representatives from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality will be in attendance to give a presentation, and to answer questions.

For further information, please contact Village Hall at 275-5743.
